There is light even in the darkest places

Building a wardrobe is more important than having the season's pieces that will be dated in the blink of an eye.

Angelo Katsapis sat down with Lash Magazine to share his view on fashion, a subtle mix of excentric and earthgrounded vision of a woman.

His collection is a subtle embrace of strictness and femininity, using black and white in silk dresses to create flowy geometric forms. He also likes his woman to be sassy and flirty with more daring outfits, like this amazing feather bustier dress for next season and Studio 54 inspired silver suits.

The clothes are simply an asset of self seduction and the woman inside the clothes is more important than the outfit itself.

He thinks women should embrace their dark side to bring their light into the world , and that's why we love him.
